I want to quickly and easily go to a page on a site, select the song, and have the lyrics automatically pop up. Any suggestions? A: I think there's one called Lyric Memeber Pro that does exactly what you want. A: Another option is using Sticky Notes, which you can use a program in your Mac or PC, such as iAnnotate, and add links to web sites that contain the lyrics to your favorite songs. You can then open the notes, click the link, and have it show up. If you use your Mac, iAnnotate has an online version, and is very well-regarded. Another option is to use an online service, such as StayLyrics, which will allow you to store the lyrics in your Google account. You can then access them on any PC/Mac/iOS device. A: Simple way to help people with lyrics would be to save your lyrics offline. Once you have them saved, you can now add them to your browser. I have been using the following Chrome extension: The lyrics save in to files inside your chrome sync directory, so it won't slow your browser down. You have the option of easily closing your browser, but you'll still have access to your old files once you start up again. A foot in the door? What's New in the?

VideoToMKV is a light-weight video conversion utility that wraps around FFmpeg. The main objective of VideoToMKV is to allow users to quickly and easily convert between various multimedia formats without requiring an intermediate data disk or a whole lot of tedium when it comes to locating and moving all sorts of files. The capability of converting to Matroska video, including subtitles and multiple channel audio is one of the best features. Simply drag the video file to the GUI window and click "Start". Click the 'A' key to stop or cancel a conversion. # Features The VideoToMKV application is designed to be a lightweight video conversion program that wraps around the very functional and capable FFmpeg library in an invisible and friendly manner. -Drag-and-Drop capability: Drag the video file or DVD folder directly into the application window and click the "Start" button. From now on, all the conversion is being done in the background, and you will not be able to access the conversion window. You can open the FFmpeg processing window at any time by pressing the "A" key. -Windows Explorer Integration: Files and folders found on your computer will be displayed on the main screen. Click the "Convert to MKV" button to convert those files to Matroska files. There are two options: A) If the files are on the same partition as VideoToMKV, "Convert" will immediately start converting the files, and you will have the option to stop or cancel the conversion at any time. B) If the files are on another partition, the destination folder will be prompted. You can then choose the destination folder to be the directory location of the new Matroska files. This is a one-time only process. You cannot change the destination folder after the files have been converted. The "A" key will also stop the conversion if necessary. -Selective conversion: You can choose which types of video files to be converted (i.e. DivX, MPG, MPEG, AVI, MOV, FLV, FLI, etc.). All conversions are being done in the background. When the conversion is over, you will not be able to open the results. You can open the FFmpeg processing window at any time by pressing the "A"
